The Fifteenth Sunday After Pentecost

In today's epistle, St Paul admonishes US:

“while we have time let us do good to all men”. Even if someone is caught doing something wrong we cannot gossip about them but rather we should pray for them realizing that we are not perfect either. If someone has done something to harm us or even just something that annoys us let us remember the words are Lord Himself worked into the Our Father whereby we set the limits on how much God forgives us by how much we forgive others “forgive us our trespasses (how much?) as we forgive those who trespass against us!” By forgiving others we show that the Holy Ghost is indeed alive in us. Blessed are the Merciful for they shall obtain mercy!

We must never forget that we are not just individuals making our lonely way towards heaven but rather we are members of the Mystical Body of Christ. What have we done to strengthen that Body? Are we praying for one another? Are we willing to do our part to build up the Church? I was told when I played football that we were only as strong as our weakest player and only as fast as our slowest teammate. Are we encouraging one another or do we prefer to just criticize? God forbid! So let us follow St Paul by being good Catholics ourselves and then helping one another by act, word, example and through prayer! Let us get to heaven together!
